

SAVE THE DATE!

Mark your calendars and save the date for MAAT's upcoming program on altered books
By Rosie Chapman, LMSW., September 12, 2009, 10:00 a.m., at Wayne State University!

Rosie Chapman, LMSW, accomplished artist, and art therapy graduate of Wayne State University will be facilitating “Altered Books as Art Therapy Intervention.” The purpose of this program is to introduce the altered books art form and its potential as an art therapy intervention.

The program includes a history of altered books, examine casework utilizing altered books to achieve therapeutic goals, offer an experiential tutorial in book preparation and techniques for altering, and concludes with a facilitated discussion about the subject and the altered books participants create during the tutorial.

This is a wonderful opportunity to learn about and acquire first hand experience creating altered books, to the benefit of your students, clients, and patients. Complimentary continental breakfast treats will be served.

Information regarding the Wayne State University location, nominal program fees for MAAT members and non-member professionals, and suggested art materials for the experiential will be updated on this site at a later date. Questions may be directed to Theresa Quinn, ATR, LMFT, Education Chair, at email TQArtTx@aol.com.
